and in Economics. In History, I have recently dealt only with such topics as "The Formation of the Union" and "The Nullification Movement". I should feel very much at home in dealing with the latter topic. I assume that lectures in Financial History would not be appropriate.

Thanking you for the honor you have done me in inviting me to lecture at the Hopkins, I am

Dear Sir:

Your letter of Jan. 22 was received yesterday. I regret to hear that Professor Adams is ill and sincerely hope that he may rapidly recover his health.

Your suggestion strikes me very favorably and I shall be glad to help you if I can possibly arrange my work here satisfactorily and can present a suitable topic. By the time your letter giving details reaches me I shall know positively whether I can leave here or not. Your letter, of course will give me the information I need for making up my final decision.

Please let me know when you want me and, in a general way, what topics would be especially appropriate for the students at this stage of their work. My lecturing the last few years has been mainly in American and Comparative Constitutional Law

Dear President Gilman:

Lectures on the early history of the Union (1789-1840) would fit in admirably with the course to be given by Frederic Bancroft. Would suggest latter part of March or early April as the best time to begin. Three, six, or twelve lectures could be used to advantage.

A { The subjects of American and Comparative Constitutional Law are amply covered by Dr. Willoughby.

Very truly,

Dear President Gilman:

I received your note
of recent date last Sunday.
I accept your invitation with much pleasure and shall arrange to be in Baltimore not later than Sunday, April the seventh.
With your approval I shall confine my remarks to the period from 1816 to 1835, touching upon the organization of the Commercial policy, the protest of the Union, the Nullification Movement as a test of the Union.

its origin, nature, and significance.

The lines you suggested are quite reasonable and thoroughly satisfactory.

Very truly yours,

David F. Austin.

History

Dear Dr. Houston:

I am sorry to have allowed so long a time to pass without acknowledging your recent letter. You may have discovered from the newspapers that our thoughts have been preoccupied in an effort to secure the gift of 176 acres of land offered to us by citizens of Baltimore. All subordinate questions have been kept in abeyance.

We really wish for help on the side of History instead of Finance, and if you could offer us three or ^{four} ~~six~~ lectures on historical themes, say on the early history of the Union (1789-1840), in the latter part of March or early in April, please let me hear from you. The subjects of American and Comparative Constitutional Law are amply covered by Dr. Willoughby.

I hardly know what to offer you. Would $25. per lecture, for three or four lectures, and your expenses in travel, be a fair allowance?

Professor David F. Houston.
