Amsterdam, July 6, 1895.

President Gilman:

My dear Sir:

I saw by the papers the day I left the United States that you had accepted the position of Director of Awards at the Atlanta Exposition. Should this involve the appointment by you of judges, I would respectfully ask that I be named a Member of the Jury assigned to Instruments of Precision, of which Jury I was Chairman at Chicago.

Should my experience as member of three International Juries be of any service to you please feel free to command me.

My address will be The Columbian University, whither I shall return early in September.

I have the honor to be your obedient Servant,

J. H. Gore
